

The pulse — one frame every twelve seconds

Equal time between frames, whatever the shots are doing: 25 ticks across the full 5:00. Sketch what is actually on screen at each tick. This is the pacing read the shot list cannot give you — when three adjacent ticks draw the same held composition, the hold is spending 24+ seconds, and it had better be S1, S13 or S20. When every tick is a new sketch, you have built a trailer.

0:00 · S1 · MV1	0:12 · S1 · MV1	0:24 · S2 · MV1	0:36 · S3 · MV1	0:48 · S4 · MV1
1:00 · S4 · MV1	1:12 · S5 · MV1	1:24 · S6 · MV2	1:36 · S7 · MV2	1:48 · S8 · MV2
2:00 · S9 · MV2	2:12 · S10 · MV2	2:24 · S10 · MV2	2:36 · S11 · MV2	2:48 · S12 · MV2
3:00 · S13 · MV2	3:12 · S14 · MV2	3:24 · S15 · MV3	3:36 · S16 · MV3	3:48 · S17 · MV3
4:00 · S18 · MV3	4:12 · S20 · MV3	4:24 · S20 · MV3	4:36 · S22 · MV3	4:48 · S23 · MV3

Read it in one pass: the eye should snag exactly where the film means it to — the first cut (0:48), the silence (S13), the empty frame after S14, the push on the older brother. Circle any snag the film did not intend.